at the joint conference TUEWAS and SNRD Asia: Breaking down the SDGs –
Contributing to Implementing the Agenda 2030. The conference discusses how to create practical progress out of the historic adoption by heads of state and government around the world of the global Agenda as a plan of action “for people, planet and prosperity”. The United Nations Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) will play a crucial role in German development cooperation over the coming years. On this occasion, over 250 national and international GIZ experts from all over Asia gather from 31 May – 2 June 2016 in Bangkok to discuss technical priority areas linking to the SDGs and what these goals mean for the GIZ projects in Asia that are part of the Sector Networks.

The Deutsche Gesellschaft für Internationale Zusammenarbeit (GIZ) GmbH is owned by the German government and with operations around the globe. GIZ provides services in the field of international cooperation for sustainable development. GIZ also works on behalf of other public and private sector clients both in Germany and overseas. These include the governments of other countries, the European Commission, the United Nations and other donor organizations. GIZ operates in more than 130 countries and employs approximately 17, 000 staff worldwide.
